Both Long and Short Sleeves Hold Favor—Quite as Many Short Sleeves and Three-quarter—Lack of Sleeves in Evening Gowns—Angel Sleeve on the Left Side of the Gown—Gloves to Match the Boot Tops—Fur Band About the Head Very Modish—General Suggestions on Cake Baking—Never Bake a Delicate Cake With Other Things in the Oven.

SLEEVES LONG AND SHORT: BOTH STYLES HOLD FAVOR.

Dame Fashion appears to be still humoring the sleeve. She makes no protest against its changing its shape to a dozen different styles and shifting its position as often as it desires. One of its latest deviations from the conventional is its starting directly from the line of the neck instead of from the natural shoulder line. This shift of position is causing considerable consternation and not a little displeasure, as the effect produced is not entirely a pleasing one. Most frequently the sleeve is gathered part of the way, in some instances all the way, the gathers falling under the arm and giving the excessive breadth along the bust line which all present modes demand. In spite of this, however, the neck-line sleeve narrows the shoulders in a way that is unbecoming to the thin woman and not particularly effective for the woman inclined to stoutness, whose width at the hip line is accordingly made the more noticeable. Some women with generous figures below the waist line are attempting to solve this neck sleeve unbecomings by using the Cherul idea of a lattice work effect over the fullness of the skirt, catching it down snugly and doing away with much of the too abundant fullness.

But this neck starting sleeve is only one of the numerous styles shown in sleeves. Some designer or group of designers surely spent long hours of absorbed attention over this salient feature of the waist garment. One new feature which promises to be popular is an invention of inserting sleeves of the same material and color as the skirt into the wide armholes of a blouse of a different shade and goods.

A more attractive fashion than this one, however, was shown here lately in one of the modish shops by a gown of wine red and black taffeta plaid made up with a surplised Eton front and finished with collar and cuffs of black satin. The sleeves were of plain red silk with a tiny vest of the same silk showing. These sleeves started from the shoulder, were draped under the arm in a rather profuse manner, narrowed decidedly at the elbow, and then flared put towards the wrist, being caught there finally by a narrow band of black satin. A wide crushed sash of black satin chapeau fell in long ends almost to the bottom of the three tunic skirt.

Quite as many short sleeves are seen these days as long ones. Dame Fashion apparently having failed to force the long sleeves on the majority of women. The comfort of the short sleeve is too great, women having had considerable time to test out that same comfort in the last two years and having proved it to their entire satisfaction. The three-quarter length is also decidedly popular, especially for the woman no longer in the first flush of youth who does not care for the long one which falls far below the wrist. The bishop sleeve, of course, is much in vogue as well as other long sleeves which are more light fitting and cling close to the arm all the way down.

In the evening gowns the lack of sleeve continues to be the chief attraction. The merest wisp of net covers the upper arm, sometimes with heavily beaded draperies of silver net, dropping down, even to the knees.

The jet of outlining the armhole with let is an unusually becoming one, as the blackness of the jet shows off favorably the whiteness of the skin. The one sleeved costume is extremely modish and popular. It is generally of fine shadow lace draping the under arm to the elbow and then falling to the hem of the skirt, finished with a tassel. It is called the "angel" sleeve and may be used either on the right or the left side of the gown, the other arm being bared to the shoulder line.

Gloves that match the boot tops are the latest fashion here. It is not necessary to match the gown or the coat or the fur at the neck and sleeves. Just the boot top and the glove are the combination that capricious women are affecting.

AN EFFECTIVELY PLACED YOKE.

A graceful shoulder line is made in this design by the deep-fitted yoke topped by the collar of brown fox. The material used is a closely woven wool sponge in cinnamon brown with buttons covered with the same. The skirt has a short front panel with a lower part, slightly gathered and draped. The back hangs rather plain with a wide box-pleat at the top. A vest of brilliant Roman striped silk shows beneath the jacket front.

A fur band about the head is modish in the extreme. Straight about the forehead from brow to back it commingles very prettily with the fur on the gown and the trimming on the coat. Sometimes it is combined attractively with the sheerest lace.

GENERAL SUGGESTIONS ON CAKE BAKING.

While the cake is in the oven, open and shut the door carefully. A sudden jar often causes a cake to fall. For the same reason avoid turning the cake during baking. If turned at all, it should be after the mixture has set enough to prevent falling. This is when nearly done.

If gas is used, the cake should be placed in the center of the top grate. If it bakes faster on one side, the gas may be turned off on that side for a short time, and turned on more on the opposite side. If the cake is baking too fast on top, a paper may be placed over it for a time. Care must be taken to keep it from sticking to the cake mixture.

Do not attempt to cool off the oven after the cake begins to bake. This makes the cake fall. If the oven is too hot when the cake is put in, it crusts over the top and later crackles open.

A sponge cake put into too hot an oven will rise around the edges and fall in the center. When too much sugar is used, or if too little flour is used, the same thing takes place.

Never bake a delicate cake with other things in the oven.

Open the door only a crack to look at the cake. If the door is thrown wide open, so large an amount of cold air rushing in will cause a delicate cake to fall.

Never set a freshly baked cake in an open window to cool. The steam will condense and make it heavy.

When beating egg whites keep them well in the center of the bowl, so that some patches will not remain unbeaten.

Beat slowly at first, and increase

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat less Meat if you feel Back-achy or have Bladder trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste set about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful, invigorating lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases. the speed as they become firm. Do not confound the term "stir" with "beat" and "cut and fold." Stir means to stir round and round, gradually blending the ingredients. Beat means to mix rapidly over and over with a spoon—the bowl of the spoon touches the bottom of the dish and carries the mixture up and over. "To cut and fold" is the term applied usually to the manner of blending stiffly beaten egg whites with some other mixture. The essential point is not to break up in such a manner as to break up the air cell in the beaten whites. "To cut and fold" means to cut down through the mixture with a spoon and lift up from the other side, folding the two mixtures together. This process is continued until the two materials are blended.

If a cake calls for cream of tartar and there is none at hand, lemon juice and soda may be substituted. Extracts should be used sparingly. A delicate cake from good materials needs very little flavoring. Pistachio flavoring may be nicely imitated by combining lemon and vanilla. Vanilla combines well with chocolate.

NORTH STAR SHARP IS NOW SING-SINGING

The forger who created a sensation last summer by manufacturing many thousand dollars' worth of spurious Tenopah North Star certificates has been caught and jailed at last, says the New York Mining Age. On Thursday he was sentenced to two and one-half years in Sing Sing. His arrest took place in New York last week, and came as a result of his attempt to pass forged checks of Jones & Baker, mining stock brokers, for purchases made at a New York jewelry shop. Alfred Hunter is the name of the guilty man. He is 45 years of age and says he formerly lived at No. 59 West Sixty-fifth street. He pleaded guilty Thursday afternoon before Judge Foster in general sessions to forgery in the first degree.

cept $20 and feel satisfied while those who wish to be more exact calculate the value of gold at $20.67. Now if you want to get right down to the quintessence of facts, an ounce of gold is worth $20.671834; it was an act of congress in 1834 in which the weight of fine gold in a dollar was established at 23.22 grains. Now an ounce Troy contains 480 grains Troy. Troy of fine gold. One ounce is worth 480 divided by 23.22 equals $20.671834. One would naturally ask why did they not make it a whole number.

FARR IN CONTROL OF SHOE COMPANY'S STOCK

Salt Lake, Dec. 20.—Newton Farr now has control as receiver of the entire stock of the Ben Davis Shoe company, which went into the hands of receivers for the benefit of the creditors of the firm. The Davis Shoe company, as it generally was called, did business in Salt Lake for more than four years and was regarded as a prosperous firm. Unsatisfactory trade conditions a few weeks ago, coming immediately after a change in location, and the incurring of additional responsibilities through enlarging the stock made the burden too heavy and the stock was assigned.

Enough for Him.

Two negroes were once matched for a boxing contest. Finally one began scoring heavily, and the other went to his corner at the end of the round badly beaten. He failed to respond when the bell rang. "Come on, heeb, niggab, dis am a fight to a finish," challenged the more lively of the pair. The battered one simply sat in his corner head down, dejected. "Yes, an' I's finished," he grunted.

Beat Train in Speeding.

A man beat a train in a recent race between the two from Groom to Kureseong, India—a distance of 15½ miles. The victor, a private named Graham, of the Argylls, beat the train by two minutes. The distance was covered in one hour and thirty minutes by continuous running. Graham walked two days before from Groom to Kureseong and back, 31 miles in six and one-fourth hours.
